It is amazing how closely the "case history" of many a well-functioning, productive person can resemble the "case history" of a psychiatric patient. That is to say, for every schizophrenic with a certain kind of upbringing, there appears to be a non-schizophrenic with the same upbringing. It should be noted that most staff conferences are based on an unstated but ever present assumption: "The patient is sick, and our job is to prove it and then find out why he is." Staff meetings can become much more interesting by reversing this to read: "The patient isn't sick, and our job is to prove that and then find out why he isn't."
